

Late yesterday afternoon the Southwestern Bell Telephone company boys gave me a demonstration of their new mobile 'phone unit which will allow you to talk from your moving car to any point on the vast A.T. & T. system, either in the United States or abroad.

Right now the 'phone company is arranging for continuous car-to-exchange service as you drive from Dallas, Texas, to St. Louis, Mo.

Radio towers are erected every 30 or 40 miles to boost the signal, and one such tower is to be constructed right behind the Hope telephone office. Foundation has already been installed by B. W. Edwards, local contractor. The tower will be of the self-supporting type (not guyed), 135 feet high.

The demonstration given me took place in the parking lot behind the telephone and newspaper buildings, close enough to the exchange to operate without a tower. I took the standard telephone receiver in hand, pressed a button, and was talking to the folks in the 'phone building . . . without any wire connection.

Here's how the thing works in actual practice:

You are in north Arkansas driving to St. Louis and you wish to talk to the Jefferson hotel there. You take down the car telephone, your signal is picked up by the nearest radio tower and relayed by wire to the exchange telephone exchange. You give the operator the telephone number of your car, tell her you want to talk to the St. Louis hotel—and pretty soon you've completed a long-distance call for which you will get a bill when you arrive home.

But suppose you are calling some individual in St. Louis and the operator can't put it through at once. In that case you tell her where you are on the highway, your estimated rate of speed—and pretty soon the call goes back to the exchange. You give the operator a peculiar feeling, indeed, when that telephone bell rings in an automobile!

What does this service cost? Well, there is no definite schedule for Hope as yet, but one of the larger cities has the following rate: $15 per month service charge, plus a minimum toll charge of $1, making a total minimum cost per telephone-equipped car of $22 a month.

Each car carries equipment valued at $1,000, and there is an initial installation charge. The American inventiveness has brought us another great advance—the ability to travel miles from home without losing touch with home or the destination to which we are bound. This is what you think about when that telephone bell suddenly rings in a car.

Next Move in Italy Is Up to Communists

By JAMES THRASHER

Moscow certainly, and Washington probably, had a political strategy for whatever might come in the elections. Now that the gratifying results are in, we shall probably see one of those strategic plans put into action.

The first move may be expected from the Communists. They have nothing to gain by saying still. But they have much to lose by unwise action. It appears, from the count of votes, that the country is strongly behind the de Gasperi government, and that any large-scale violence by the Communists would be met by vigorous government action backed by popular support.

This must present a serious problem to the Moscow strategists. If the Social Democrats had barely squeaked in, the Popular Front could have demanded a place in the government. And being refused, they surely would have taken action. They might have had strength to follow the Greek pattern and set up a "people's democracy" in the north of Italy.

But the loss of the northern industrial cities, heavily Communist in 1946, should not be overlooked. The accompanying loss of prestige, while it won't stop the Reds' agitation, probably will slow them down.

The whole story behind this loss is not readily apparent to an American, but some of the issues are. The Communists, as well as their opponents freely admitted that the choice in the election lay between America and Russia.

Passage of the European aid program in this country was a decisive factor, of course. So was the Catholic church's stance against Communism. The smart Anglo-American move for a return of Trieste to Italy, and Russia's rejection, carried weight. Probably the letters and broadcasts from friends and countrymen in America helped, too.

That the Communists are still numerous enough to make plenty of trouble. They seem to be well fed, well disciplined and well financed. It is not likely that the Kremlin will risk touching off World War III by a civil war in Italy. But it can't be too sure. The smart Anglo-American move for a return of Trieste to Italy, and Russia's rejection, carried weight. Probably the letters and broadcasts from friends and countrymen in America helped, too.

As for America, the Italian elections have averted a crisis which would have had a new fatal blow to European recovery, to our foreign policy and prestige, and to the hope of peace. That about sums it up, but it is enough.

Now the ERP can go ahead as planned. The progress is bound to be rough, and slow. But thanks to the Italian people, who made perhaps the most decisive choice in their democratic history, Europe can move ahead.

White House Calls in Rail Labor Leaders

Washington, May 6 — (AP)—The White House today called a conference of railroad brotherhood chiefs for tomorrow to try to head off the threatened railroad strike.

Dr. John R. Steelman, presidential assistant and labor expert, telephoned the heads of three unions which have called a strike for next Tuesday. He asked them to meet with him at 10:00 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles C. Ross, who made the announcement, was asked if any definite proposal would be presented to the brotherhood leaders.

"I can't say any more than I have," Ross replied.

The brotherhood leaders are Alvanley Johnston of the Locomotive Engineers, David B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineers, and A. J. Glover of the Switchmen's Union.

Johnston, who was in Cleveland today, said he would leave for Washington tonight. Robertson is already here.

Johnston told reporters Steelman indicated to him that he wanted to talk first with the union men, then call in representatives of railroad management.

Steelman has been keeping in constant touch with the railroad situation and reporting to President Truman.

Ross was asked whether Steelman would have a similar conference with representatives of the railroads.

"I can't say as yet," Ross said. "I have told you all that has been done to date."

Steelman reached Glover by telephone at 9:30 a. m. and got assurance Glover would attend, Robertson said he would.

White House aides would not discuss what possible action might be taken if Steelman cannot persuade the railroads to accept an agreement.

They turned aside such questions as whether Mr. Truman will talk personally with the disputants, whether the union leaders might be asked to postpone the strike date, or whether the government might seize the railroads.

A plea by the president for the railroad owners and the unions to settle their wage dispute without a strike is known to be under consideration. White House aides will recommend it only if convinced there is a possibility the plea would be heeded.

Because of the strike threat, railroads began serving notice to thousands of shop and other employees that they will be laid off if the engineers, firemen and switchmen quit work.

Through the Association of American Railroads, a dozen lines gave notice today that they would stop accepting perishable freight shipments this week-end. Other roads were taking similar action individually.

The first move to avoid the possibility that livestock, poultry and other perishable shipments may be stranded on their tracks.

The Louisville and Nashville announced yesterday it will stop accepting perishable freight at one minute after midnight tonight. An identical notice was given today by the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad.

Petrillo would play duet with Truman

Washington, May 6 — (UP)—James C. Petrillo, a union trumpet player, today offered to play a duet with President Truman, an amateur piano player.

Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, visited the White House today to invite him and his family to a free concert sponsored by the union May 25 at Constitution hall here.

Petrillo told reporters as he left the president's office Mr. Truman accepted on behalf of his wife and his daughter Margaret.

Petrillo was asked if politics were mentioned.

"Two musicians discussed a little bit of harmony," Petrillo said. We had musical harmony, not political harmony."

"I told him that sometime when I'm not too busy I'll play the trumpet and he can play the piano."

Petrillo said the musicians union had set aside $1,736,721 for free music appreciation programs throughout the United States. The May 25 concert here will be the first. The National Symphony Orchestra will play.

He said the money came out of the royalty fund on phonograph records which has since been outlawed by the Taft-Hartley law.

H. O. Kyler Views New Agricultural Tools in Memphis

President Asks Prompt Action on Housing

Washington, May 6 — (UP)—President Truman today called the housing shortage an "almost fatal" problem and asked prompt action by the House to meet it.

In an extemporaneous speech before the National Conference on Housing, the president said the problems that require solution include housing, health and social security, which have a "direct bearing on family life."

He said the family unit is the basis for all government action. Asserting a study of the problems of the founding fathers made him wonder how they were ever solved, he said:

"I look at some of the things our ancestors had to contend with and I wonder how they did it."

Discussing housing, he said: "Just recently the Senate passed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner (Housing) bill in wonderful form."

"I sincerely hope that the House of Representatives will study the legislation and give us the opportunity to act on this problem."

On Capitol Hill, the House Republican leadership was rowing angrily with Senator Taft (R-Ohio) over the bill. Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich.) of the House Banking Committee said he was "not interested" in the Senate's stopgap measure to revive the government's $1.6 billion home loan insurance program until June 30.

Approximately 3,000 persons listened to the president in the interdepartmental auditorium, a few blocks from the White House. His speech, made without notes, was broadcast.

Mr. Truman said "one of the worst things" in trying to solve problems affecting family life is that this is a presidential campaign. Continued on Page Eight

Boeing Files Suit Against Union

Seattle, May 6 — (AP)—The Boeing Airplane Co. and the striking 14,500 members of the Aeronautical Mechanics Union fought with a multi-million dollar suit and the threat of a counter suit today in the two-week tieup of heavy bomber production.

The company filed a federal court action yesterday for $2,250,000 damages from the union under the Taft-Hartley act. The complaint served notice the claims would increase as the strike continues to halt output of B-50 bombers and other aircraft.

The union announced it was paying a suit asking $163,000 for every day of the strike for loss of wages and $140,000 weekly to pay strike benefits to its parent organization, the International Association of Machinists.

With other actions contemplated, the total suit would run to $5,000,000 at this date, a spokesman said.

Money may also be asked to cover the cost of picketing, care for workers' welfare and other strike maintenance duties, said Union Attorney L. Presley Gill.

Another contemplated action would demand that the company bargain with the union.

The company suit, also directed against the IAM, accused the local and the IAM of "causing and sustaining" the strike in violation of a no-strike clause in the contract.

Money to Build Large Airforce Passes Senate

Washington, May 6 — (AP)—Funds for an immediate start on building a 70-group combat air force won overwhelming Senate approval today.

The senators passed a $233,200,000 motion picture as part of a program to increase military air power.

The measure now goes back to the House for action on several Senate amendments. That House previously had voted $34.3 to expand the air forces and the navy's air arm.

Senate action came after Chairman Bridges (R-NH) of the appropriation committee singled out Soviet Russia as "our only possible opponent."

He said Russia now is expanding and modernizing the Soviet Air Forces and may have the atomic bomb secret in the next few years.

"By one action on this bill, we will help to determine what weapon this country shall have at its disposal in the period 1951 to 1953," Bridges told the Senate. "We are warned it is in that period Russia may have created the greatest military advantage which we now hold by virtue of our exclusive possession of the atomic bomb."

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved the bill 16 to 1 a week ago. The House already has stamped its approval, 343 to 3, on a similar measure.

The bill contains funds for both the air forces and the air arms of the navy and marines. The only dispute is over an $825,000 item which Secretary of Defense Forrestal neither asked nor wanted.

Forrestal and President Truman originally asked Congress to vote an expansion of air, land and sea forces, and a separate universal military training program.

The defense secretary then suggested it might be wise to begin contracting for some of the new aircraft, by moving ahead part of next year's funds and authorizations.

House leaders grabbed this suggestion and ran away with it. Instead of the 58-group air force proposal by Forrestal, the House said there would be 70 groups including many new jet-driven fighters and long range bombers. It tacked on the $225,000,000 extra to start work on these plans.

Some lawmakers said frankly they hoped quick action to build up the nation's air power might avoid an election-year vote on the roughly issues of drafting young men or putting them in UMI camps.

Forrestal, insisting there should be a "balanced" defense program rather than one pegged to "emergency," offered a compromise 66-group plan with 11 additional groups to be equipped largely with World War II bombers and fighters now in storage.

Congressional critics called this a "mothball" air force and pushed the new jet fighters and bombers.

Neither a UMT nor draft bill has reached the Senate or House floor, although a House committee approved a plan last summer.

Crazy Horse Is a Hero to the Sioux and They Want Memorial to His Courage

By HAL BOYLE
Custer, S. D. — (AP)—The most controversial figure in the Black Hills today is a 500-foot-tall dream of a man.

The head that holds the dream is on the shoulders of Korzak Ziolkowski, Boston-born sculptor and war veteran.

The figure in the dream is a giant memorial statue of Crazy Horse, the Sioux warrior who led his tribe to a huge 2,000 people could stand on the chief's outflung arm.

To make his dream come true Ziolkowski must carve it out himself from Thunderhead mountain.

And that is what is causing the controversy. These "magic mountains" were once sacred ground to the Sioux. Today, they are less venerated but no less loved by the white victors who have turned the Black Hills into a year-round vacation land.

They have stocked the area with wild game — pheasant, deer, elk, buffalo, beaver — and want to keep it fresh and unspoiled.

For this reason many grumbled when Gutzon Borglum conceived the Mount Rushmore memorial. Most are glad now he carried it out. The great shrine carrying the faces of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt draws 6,000 tourist visitors a day during the summer. The people of South Dakota are proud of it.

The Crazy Horse monument proposal, however, is meeting perhaps even sturdier criticism than did Borglum's Rushmore project.

"We don't want to turn our Black Hills into a sculptor's gallery," said one elderly resident.

Behind the objection also is a feeling that the Indian memorial might "drive" Rushmore, which is about twenty miles away. Other think on the other hand, it would serve as a twin drawing card for tourists.

Few of those who question Ziolkowski's plan question his competence. Gutzon Borglum, head of the National Sculpture Society, is considered by many as the most popular sculptor in the world.

He also worked for a short time with Borglum on Mount Rushmore.

Striking Teachers Back at Work in Rhode Island

Providence, R. I., May 6 — (AP)—Striking Providence public school teachers returned to their classrooms today after scoring a victory in their demand for wage increases.

The two-day strike virtually paralyzed school operations in this city of 225,000.

The AFL teachers alliance accepted an agreement giving them a single salary schedule, replacing three schedules now in effect based on grades taught.

The accepted proposal gives all teachers an immediate raise of $200 a year, and establishes, effective Sept. 2, salary brackets of $2,400 to $4,800 based on length of service, with automatic raises of $150 a year.

Here and There in Arkansas

Little Rock, May 6 — (AP)—The Federal Conciliation Service is negotiating to settle seven labor disputes in Arkansas.

Two of the disputes are in the strike state. W. F. White, Kansas City, regional director of the service, said here today.

AFL labor areas are striking against the Fort Smith Contractors Association, and AFL Papermakers are striking against the Williams Printing Company at Camden. Conciliation Commissioner C. C. Wheeler, who is assigned to the Arkansas disputes, said work is continuing in both cases.

Locations of the other disputes were not disclosed.

Little Rock, May 6 — (AP)—Thirty-one spots in the championship flight were at stake in the qualifying round of the Little Rock Amateur Invitation golf tournament at the Country Club today.

The other berth automatically belongs to Wilford Wehrle of Louisville, Ky., as defending champion. Wehrle, nevertheless, was to play a qualifying round in hopes of winning medalist honors.

Approximately half a dozen entrants are considered serious threats to Wehrle's chances of winning the title for the third straight year. The runner-up last year, another big Chicago shotmaker, is Jim Frisina of Taylorville, Ill.

Arkansas' chief hopes are Johnny Buzick of Monette, the state champion, and Bubba Smart, three-time state champ and University of Arkansas ace from Pine Bluff.

Fifteen-hole match play gets under way tomorrow. The final match Sunday is carded over a 36-hole route.

Washington, May 5 — (AP)—Rep. Oren Harris of Arkansas has suggested that the terms of members of the House of Representatives be increased from two to four years.

The proposal was made in a constitutional resolution introduced in the House.

U.S. Rep. Harris' plan, the terms of congressional members would be increased to four years, he said, would in most cases prevent one party from controlling Congress while the other controls the White House.

The Arkansas representative also raised the idea that it is practically impossible for a new member of Congress to get an intelligent grasp of the scope of problems that arise in the functioning of the government in a two-year term.

Diplomats Fear Russia May Give Full Recognition to Jewish State on May 15

United Nations Hall, Flushing, N. Y., May 6 — (UP)—United Nations diplomats speculated today that Russia might give official recognition to the Hebrew state which Palestine Jews will proclaim on May 15.

Formation of that state and its recognition by Moscow are the two things the western powers are trying hard to prevent by means of the current emergency meeting of the U. N. General Assembly.

Soviet officials have dropped the first slight hints, however, that they will translate their support of Palestine partition into official recognition of the Jewish — and probably of the British — mandate ends nine days hence.

Talk of Russian recognition of the Hebrew state grew out of an exchange between Soviet and Cuban delegates late last night in a closed meeting of a general assembly subcommittee.

The group started to work on various suggestions for replacing the British rule in Palestine when Cuban Delegate Guillermo Belt proposed that the assembly and its 58 members refuse to recognize any state proclaimed in Palestine after May 15.

Soviet Ambassador A. S. Panayushkin pointed out the proposal, asserting that the assembly's partition program there are supposed to be independent Jewish and Arab states in Palestine after Britain's mandate ends.

The Russians and their supporters in the U. N. already have announced opposition to the western powers' attempt to replace partition with something less permanent and less inclined to whip the Arab world into a frenzy.

The United States, however, a reliable authority, has based its entire switch in policy from partition because of fears that division of the Holy Land into Arab and Jewish states might give the Soviet Union a hold in the strategic Middle East.

France, Russia Object
New York, May 6 — (AP)—France and Russia joined today in an attack on the United States proposed plan to place Jerusalem under a neutral commissioner without police power.

Both declared the plan inadequate to preserve order in the Holy City.

It was laid before the special Palestine assembly of the United Nations after getting unanimous approval of the U. N. trusteeship council.

French Delegate Alexander Parodi urged a plenary session of the assembly at Flushing Meadow Park to set up a strong international authority for Jerusalem, backed by an able volunteer police force of 1,000 trained men.

Soviet Delegate Semen K. Tsarapkin told the assembly he could not accept the trusteeship council's proposal. He demanded that French suggestions be studied carefully.

Both France and Russia are members of the council, which completed its report early yesterday after nine days of wrangling.

New Zealand, another member of the trusteeship council, demanded that the U. N. place Jerusalem under temporary trusteeship despite Jewish and Arab opposition.

Committees for the Senior class play "Dear Daffodil," a three-act comedy by Dana Thomas, to be presented in a matinee and night performance Friday, May 14, were announced by Mrs. B. E. McMahon director.

Promoters, Bettie Sue Edmiston and Sue O'Brien; stage managers, Harold Higginson and Joe Rooser; stage crew, Robert Atkinson, Beville Osborn, O. T. Cranford, and Buddy Beard; electrician, Thomas McBain; business manager, Lloyd Thrash; committee, Jarvis Pomeroy, Allison Shields, Earline Thompson, and Mary Alice Urey; property committee, Louise Elder and Perry Campbell; advertising, Bobby Joyce Guillemin and Carlos Hill; decorating, Naomi Bruner, Jo Ann Frank, Harold Higginson, Corine and Pauline Morris, and Jo Rene Evans; and interest to the plot, Majorettes Maxine Bowden, Bettie Sue Edmiston, Nell Cox and Nell Coffee are appealing in their uniforms. They step high to the beat of the Drummer boy, Jack Ray.

Tickets are on sale now. The matinee will begin at 2 p. m., 15c for grade school children and 35c for high school students and adults; the 8 p. m. performance will be 15c for grade school, 35c for high school and 50c for adults.

The play concerns an average American family with a home atmosphere. Character portrayals by Maxine Rogers, Jack Bundy, Dora Lou Frank, Harold Higginson, Corine and Pauline Morris, and Jo Rene Evans add interest to the plot. Majorettes Maxine Bowden, Bettie Sue Edmiston, Nell Cox and Nell Coffee are appealing in their uniforms. They step high to the beat of the Drummer boy, Jack Ray.

Group Renews Palestine Truce Talks

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, May 6 — (AP)—A United Nations commission tries again here today for a truce covering all Jerusalem, scene of new fighting in the light between Arabs and Jews.

The commission — the Jerusalem consults general of the United States, Belgium and France — returned last night from Jericho, halfway to Amman, Trans-Jordan.

Authoritative sources said it had failed to bring about a truce agreement in talks there with Col. Moshe Lohr of the U. N. secretariat and Arab leaders.

The Arab leaders were Deputy Foreign Minister Hussein Sirat of Trans-Jordan, Ahmed Hilmi Pasha of the Palestine Arab Higher Committee, and Tawfik Sa'ad, brother of the premier of Lebanon.

The commission found, the informants said, these men had no power to enter into agreements and so decided to call in higher ranking Arabs for today's negotiations.

The new negotiations were undertaken on the traditional day of Christ's ascension into heaven from the Mount of Olives near the Holy City.

The Moslem Sheikh Jarrah quarter, through which an eastern Christian clergyman had to pass on their way to services on the mount today, resounded for an hour last night with submachinegun fire and grenade and mortar-shell explosions. Signal flares were seen.

A truce has been in effect since Sunday, after the capture of Jerusalem by the southern Kalamon suburbs.

Great Britain gives up her mandate over the Holy Land, a week from next Saturday. But her under-secretary of foreign affairs, Christopher Marchmont, said last night she will keep Middle-Eastern peace in the safety and welfare of the British commonwealth.

Britain is pledged to have all her troops out of Palestine by Aug. 1, but under a new policy announced Sunday has been bringing some back because of what she calls a deteriorated situation.

A British Army spokesman said the Jewish underground, known as Irgun, had killed seven soldiers in a motor convoy on the Haifa road outside Natanya.

The Jewish militia Hagana, however, said it had killed 25 Arabs yesterday in Galilee, northern Palestine. The broadcast said an Arab attack on Kefar Zion, of Jerusalem, Tuesday cost the Jews 11 killed and 25 wounded. The Arabs slain, Arabs said they had killed 100 Jews.

Cleanup Day at Fair Park on May 12
Wednesday, May 12, starting at 1 p. m., has been designated Cleanup Day.

All citizens of Hope are asked to report at the park with necessary equipment such as rakes, hoes and lawnmowers. A winch-truck and hay mower are also needed.

All participants are asked to bring a lunch and when the work is finished baskets will be spread.

It is the plan of the Park committee, made of members from the local civic clubs, the Garden Club, Chamber of Commerce, county and city representatives, to thoroughly clean the park, plant benches and the bandstand. City trucks and crews will be on hand to haul off debris.

All men, women and children of Hope are asked to help clean this park. If you wish to plan please notify the Chamber of Commerce so the committee will know how many to expect.

C. T. Robinson, Brother of Hope Residents, Dies
C. T. Robinson, resident of Orange, Texas, died last night at his home. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Elliot Sweet of California, a grandson, Jerry, two sisters, Mrs. Ada Talley of Hope, Mrs. Dale McGee of Malvern, four brothers, Oscar of DesAire, Earl of Oklahoma City, Ernest of New York and Wiley Robinson of Hope.

Funeral services will be in Rose Hill cemetery of Hope. Arrangements are incomplete.

Dr. F. A. Buddin Former Methodist Pastor, Is Visitor
Dr. Francis A. Buddin, pastor of First Methodist church, Hope, from 1924 to 1930, was a weekend visitor here today. Dr. Buddin, who subsequently served a church in Dallas, Texas, and is now pastor at Hot Springs, was en route to Magnolia for a funeral service.

through 25. Last Sunday Owen J. Roberts, retired supreme court justice, rapped out at this plan as "an ill-conceived compromise dictated by the political expedience of an election-minded Congress."

But yesterday, Roberts wrote Chairman Gurney (R-SD) of the Senate committee:

"If for political reasons, or other, UMT cannot be enacted this session, I think the compromise plan is the most effective temporary measure x x pending enactment of a true UMT program."

The House Armed Services Committee has approved a separate draft measure, but like its UMT bill of last year it is in the hands of the House Rules Committee. The chairman of that group, Rep. Leo Allen (R-Ill.) has advanced his own plan for avoiding a draft—a special bonus for volunteers. This would be $1,000 for a two year hitch and $1,500 for three-year volunteers.

Fulbright Is Happy Over Oleo Victory

Washington, May 6 — (AP)—Senator Fulbright of Arkansas is happy but surprised over the preliminary victory of forces seeking to repeal taxes on oleomargarine.

Fulbright led the oleo group in a three-day running debate. Yesterday the Senate voted 47 to 30 to approve the bill referred to the agriculture committee.

"At the very best," said the Arkansas senator, "I thought we might win by two or three votes."

Fulbright had called for the vote after Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) the Senate's presiding officer, ordered the bill referred to the agriculture committee. Tax repeal forces believed the bill would have a better chance of approval if referred to the finance committee, of which Fulbright is a member.

Yesterday's vote, Fulbright observed in an interview, was "a pretty fair interpretation of how the Senate stands."

"If a senator didn't want to vote for the bill, he had a fair excuse here to sustain the chair."

He said he would confer with Chairman Millikin (R-Colo.) of the finance committee to seek early hearings on the bill.

Nine of the 13 finance committee members who voted yesterday, eight voted with Fulbright. One Senator Butler (R-Neb.)—voted to sustain Vandenberg.

"I think I've spent more time on this bill than I've ever spent on any other," Fulbright commented.

U. S. Mediates Trouble in Greek Rule

Athens, May 6 — (AP)—The United States apparently adopted the role of mediator today in a dispute over reshuffling the Greek government. Liberal and Populist party cabinet members are reported to be placing their resignations at the disposal of Premier Themistokles Sophoulis.

Dwight Griswold, administrator of American aid to Greece, and a representative of the U. S. embassy talked with the Liberal party premier for an hour. Then they scheduled a meeting with Vice Premier Constantin Tsaldaris, leader of the Populist (Royalist) party. A second meeting with Sophoulis was fixed for tonight or tomorrow.

Reliable sources said efforts were being made to bring about an agreement on switching cabinet posts of three or four ministries in the case of each of the two parties.

The informants said all Liberal ministers already had submitted their resignations to Sophoulis and Populists were about to do the same to permit the two leaders to go ahead with reshuffling the coalition government. Sophoulis last night suspended parliament for a month because he and Tsaldaris were unable to agree on changes.

A source close to Sophoulis said it was agreed that George Varvoutis, liberal minister of national economy, would be named Greek representative to the Marshall plan committee in Paris. This would pave the way toward a Liberal-Populist agreement which would end a crisis threatening to overthrow the eight-month old coalition.

It was over the replacement of Varvoutis that the crisis originally arose.

Constantis Rentis, Minister of Public Order, announced that 13 guerrillas, including two women, were executed this morning. They were sentenced to death by a military tribunal. This brings to 165 the number of persons put to death

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

Chicago, May 6 — (AP)—With the railroad strike situation attracting most attention, grains held firm on the board up to trade today. In the first few minutes prices slumped below the previous close, but the market rallied quickly.

Late in the session there appeared some shifting of opinion. May wheat into deferred deliveries. May strongest contract in all recent sessions, lost some of its premium over the July future. Both May corn and oats continued strong on short covering.

Wheat closed unchanged to 2 cents higher, May $2.47-$2.48 3-4, corn was 5-6 to 2 cents higher, May $2.23 5-8-3-4, oats were 12-1 1/2 higher, May $1.13 12-3-4, and soy beans were 7 to 8 cents lower, May $3.97.

Spot wheat was quoted though unsold as a little higher with futures trading; basis unchanged; receipts five cars. Corn was steady basis unchanged; bookings 52,000 bushels; shipping sales 40,000 bushels; receipts 49 cars. Oat were two cents higher; basis unchanged to firmer; bookings 7,000 bushels receipts 19 cars. Soybeans receipted were four cars.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, May 6 — (AP)—The stock market shifted to the recovery side today behind selected rails, oil and industrial stocks. Prices hardened in virtually all departments after an early slip. White House moves to avert the railway strike threatened for next week received much of the credit for the comeback.

While the market pivoted, there were more or less indifferent, and minus signs persisted here and there at the close, gains of fractions to 2 or more points predominated. There were a number of new highs for the year. Aviation enjoyed a late flurry when the Senate approved funds for a big air combat force. Touching 1948 peaks were Northern Pacific, Baltimore Ohio, Seaboard Oil, Union Carbide and Brooklyn Union Gas on another rate boost.

Better performers included Santa Fe, Western Maryland Railway, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Southern Pacific, Nickel Plate Railroad, Texas Co., Standard Oil (N.J.), U. S. Steel, Boeing, United Aircraft, Curry Co., Pepsico, Phelps Dodge, American Woolen, International Paper and Paramount Pictures.

Bonds were a trifle uneven. New York, May 6 — (AP)—Cotton futures turned steady following business in early dealings today as mill buying, along with New Orleans and local covering met only limited offerings. Indications of an overseas condition following recent liquidating pressure and revival of the talk that approval of the private cotton credit program for Japan was imminent had a steadying influence on the market.

Futures closed 30 cents to $2.05 a bale higher than the previous close.

Administration Would Revive Lend Lease

By R. H. SHACKFORD

Washington, May 6 — (UP)—The Truman administration today deftly pointed the United States toward revival of a limited military lend-lease program for western Europe.

But the prospects were that anything beyond a so-called "ERP insurance" program—military backing for the European recovery program—will be debated and decided after the presidential elections.

"ERP insurance" is the term used to describe the plan under which the president with certain strings attached would be allowed to send some military supplies to Europe if necessary to protect ERP.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Warren R. Austin, the U. S. delegate to the United Nations, have gone farther than any other officials toward committing the administration to a long-range military lend-lease program. In testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on changes in the U. N. charter, they said: "The administration is considering asking Congress for authority to send military supplies to western Europe."

Austin — "We have acted to strengthen the economies of friendly states (ERP); now let us act to strengthen their military position. We should strengthen the military posture of our friends."

No one in authority anticipates that a full-fledged military aid program to back up the five nations "western union" alliance will be ready for consideration by the United States — let alone this Congress — until fall. The elections probably would mean that it would not come up until the new Congress meets in January.

Even if Congress had the time remaining before adjournment, members of western union will not have their own plans ready for many months.

Marshall and his top advisers take the same view toward military assistance for western union as they did toward economic aid. It amounts to this: The proposed recipients of aid should prove first that they are doing and are prepared to do everything possible they can for themselves.

The Doctor Says:

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

The prostate gland in men lies below and behind the urinary bladder. It is a sex gland. Its openings are narrow and can be easily blocked up. The prostate thus serves as an excellent place for the growth of certain infecting germs.

When infection involving this organ starts suddenly, a condition is produced known as acute prostatitis. The most common cause of acute prostatitis is a germ called the gonococcus which is the cause of gonorrhea, although not all cases are caused by this germ or acquired in the same way.

The most common early symptoms of acute infections of the prostate are disturbances in urination, particularly burning, dribbling, or frequency. A feeling of fullness in the bladder and pain can be present but is not always so. Absolute rest in bed and avoidance of strain is necessary in the presence of acute prostatitis. Large amounts of fluids, the application of heat, and drugs or foods to make the urine alkaline are desirable. A valuable aid in treatment is now available in the form of the sulfa drugs, penicillin, and streptomycin.

The prostate also can become chronically inflamed, like the acute variety this is sometimes, but not always, caused by gonococcus. Chronic prostatitis is likely to become less common in the future since the acute infections which it often follows can be treated more successfully now.

Symptoms Are Few
Chronic prostatitis often produces few if any symptoms. Some patients have only a small amount of discharge. Others have urinary symptoms similar to those of the acute variety but not so severe. Local signs of prostate infection may be absent altogether, but the infection may cause difficulties elsewhere in the body, such as arthritis, neuritis, muscle pains.

A long-lasting chronic prostatitis is difficult to cure. Treatment consists in promoting drainage so far as possible, prostatic massage, heat applications and sometimes vaccines or treatment with drugs. Whatever treatment is followed, however, may take a long time and be discouraging. Victims of chronic prostatitis cannot expect a rapid cure.

QUESTION: What effect would the regular eating of one-half pound of salted peanuts have on the health of a 60-year-old man?

ANSWER: The salt may be dangerous but if the stomach and intestines stand the peanuts there should not be any other harm.

DOROTHY DIX Modern Old Maids

In the olden times when marriage was the only profitable avocation open to women, it is easy to see why every girl was in hot pursuit of a husband and why, if she failed to get one, it advertised her as lacking in charm and desirability.

The fate of the spinster in those benighted days was indeed a sad one, for the unmarried woman was forced to wither away on the parent vine, or else be the unwanted fringe on the family of some relative. A marriage certificate was her card of admission to everything that was worth while in life. And certainly no women were more to be pitied than the Miss Sallys and Miss Marys who spent their dreary years in crocheting baby socks and rearing other women's children, without hope, or interest, or any chance of ever bettering their lots.

So it is no wonder that the unmarried woman was looked upon as a failure, and that the term "old maid" became a mockery and a reproach, but, thank Heaven, all of that belongs to the Dark Ages. We

Seeks Increase for Teachers in Arkansas

Little Rock, May 6 (AP) — Pay boosts for Arkansas School Teachers are sought in a proposed 1948-49 budget for the State Department of Education.

The budget request, filed with the state comptroller, asks an annual appropriation of $36,335,500 for each year of the biennium nearly $11,000,000 a year more than the department's current budget.

Most of the additional money would go for raising annual teachers' salary aid to local school districts from $10,000,000 to $18,000,000.

An appropriation of $4,000,000 a year, an increase of about a million dollars, is asked for the equalizing transportation aid program.

Education Commissioner Ralph B. Jones' request also includes provisions for expanding various divisions of the department and increasing salaries of some members of his staff. The commissioner himself asks an increase of $2,200 above his $5,000-a-year salary.

Instead of a formal budget request, State Welfare Commissioner Ted Christy filed a schedule of welfare payments his department could make during the next biennium, with the appropriation which would be required for each.

Even an appropriation of $47,677,180 will not fully meet the needs of families on the welfare rolls on the basis of current prices, he said.

Men have always been rather proud of being bachelors because they thought it showed how clever they were to outwit the husband-hunters, and the modern woman is copying them. Especially is this true of business women, who do not feel that they have to write Mrs. before their names to give them standing, and they are more apt to flaunt being single in your face than to try to cover it up.

Without doubt every woman would like to marry, provided she meets a man who comes up to her ideal and with whom she falls in love. But, barring that happy accident, she does not waste any tears on being single, for most of the drawbacks to celibacy that drove women into marriage no longer exist. No girl of average intelligence has to marry for a living now. She is self-supporting. Nor does she have to live under her mother's thumb. She can set up her own home and live just as independently as if she were a man.

And instead of old maids being social outcasts who are looked down upon as if they were pariahs, no other women are more beloved, or more sought after as dinner guests. Taking them by and large, they are highly intelligent women who have seen the world and are shrewd judges of character. They are tolerant and broadminded and generous. Many a boy and girl go to college and get a start in life because Aunt Sally never married. And many a woman who has a sick husband or a trifling ailment would starve if she did not have an old maid sister.

Only fools deride old maids. Wise people honor them.

There Are Many Ways to Serve Rice

We think of rice, usually as being white and fluffy, but for a change why not send it to the table in the "double R's" because we call it Red Rice. And it goes with out saying that no color in food makes a more attractive appearance to those we feed than red. Simply following this recipe assures the cook of an easy success.

Red Rice
One green pepper; two medium onions, more or less as you like; four tablespoons butter, salad oil, or bacon drippings; one cup uncooked rice; two cups tomato juice; one teaspoon salt; one-eighth teaspoon pepper. (But seasonings must be left a personal affair.)
Melt the fat in a skillet or heavy saucepan. Add chopped green pepper and thinly sliced onions. Cook gently until both green pepper and onions have been eased into a state of lassitude by the heat. Take out peppers and onions and set aside. Add uncooked rice to the fat. Fry rice stirring constantly. Don't take your eye off it but stand by swishing it back and forth in the fat until the grains are a golden brown. Add onion to the rice. Stir slowly until the grains are as tender as a lover's sigh. Stir often with a pronged fork, especially toward the end of the cooking. Season to taste. Serve as a vegetable, but you'll find it an excellent main dish to be served with a salad and dessert.

Potatoes are said to have 500 ways of serving, and tomatoes equally as many—but the ways rice counted to contention. They just go on and on. But no matter how "on and on" they go, it would be hard to be open minded enough not to clutch this one to you as a favorite. If the prerequisites of a popular dish are to be "looks pretty and tastes eye-opening, liftingly good"—you have it all in this soufflé.

Rice Soufflé
One cup cooked rice; one cup grated cheese; one cup milk, two tablespoons butter or margarine; one and one-half tablespoons flour; one teaspoon dry mustard; one chopped green pepper; three eggs, beaten separately; salt, pepper and paprika to taste.

Melt butter or margarine in a saucepan and add flour to which the mustard has been added. When well mixed, add the milk gradually. Cook over very low heat until the sauce is smooth. Add green pepper and cheese. Keep the heat low and stir until the cheese is melted. Add rice. Remove from heat and add egg yolks one at a time, beating well after each addition. Next add the stiffly beaten egg whites. Fold these in gently. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake at 375 degrees for one half hour or a little longer. It should rise high in crown formation and be firm as any other soufflé.

It is wonderfully easy, and such a good dish for summer when hot but rather light food is the most appealing.
Rice finds itself in that enviable place of being listed among the protein foods by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Once we thought about protein as a builder and an important it is. Lately we have found out that protein is thought to be an important actor in the fight against anemia. So as meals are planned, we think of its being an enjoyable experience to the taste buds, but still more than that, with rice, you can find pleasure in seeking the most important factor in living—health.

This little number is one of the rice mixtures that will be used over and over again. Sometimes it will be bread for the meal, other times it will serve as bread but will combine this mission with being the backbone for a creamed chicken sauce or a tomato sauce and make the meal.

Rice Spoon Bread
One cup boiled rice; one-fourth cup corn meal; two cups sour milk; one-half teaspoon soda; one teaspoon salt; two eggs, separated; three tablespoons butter, margarine or bacon drippings. Mix together the rice, corn meal, sour milk in which the soda has

Stassen, Taft Supporters Claim Victory

Columbus, O., May 7.—(A)—Harold P. Stassen's capture of nine Ohio Republican presidential delegates today was called victory or defeat—depending on which way you looked.

Sen. Robert A. Taft won the other 14 contested delegates, plus 30 without opposition from the former Minnesota governor, nearly complete returns showed.

Both Taft and Stassen hailed the outcome of Tuesday's primary election as a personal victory. Their delegates are pledged to support them for the GOP presidential nomination at the national convention next month.

Taft from Washington said his 44 Ohio delegates assure him of more first ballot convention votes than any other candidate.

Stassen said his was a "clean cut victory—one of the most significant developments of the entire national campaign."

"The Republicans of Ohio have advanced us another step toward nomination at Philadelphia," Stassen asserted at Minneapolis.

Flush from victories in Wisconsin, Nebraska and Pennsylvania been dissolved, the salt and the beaten egg yolks. Add the melted fat and last, fold in the beaten egg yolks.

Pour into a greased baking dish and bake at 325 degrees, slow moderate oven, for one hour. If your oven isn't well regulated, place the baking dish in a pan of hot water during the baking period.

Serve spooned from the dish with butter or margarine as bread, or pass gravy along in its wake. Or serve with creamed chicken sauce which can come so easily from slightly diluted canned chicken soup, or vary it with tomato sauce, or even mushroom sauce procured in the same way. It'll be an every day favorite. Try it and see!

Whether it was that introduced chicken to rice should have a chum. They instantly found a deep mutual friendship and have been seen around with each other ever since. This one is an extra special meeting of these two. We recommend it highly for the family since it gets the most out of a chicken. But more than that, it's perfect for the hostess-bridget fair. Most of it can be done ahead of time, leaving no last minute mess to clean up, and it can even be made up to the last baking the day before.

Chicken Supreme en Casserole
Cook one four or five pound hen in water to cover. Allow to cool in the liquid. When cool enough to handle, take the chicken off the bones and cut into not too-small chunks. Skim off most of the fat on top of the liquid—at least enough to make the cream sauce and more if the hen had been storing up her pickings and scratchings into the middle aged spread. Instead of egg production.

Cook the broth down until you have about two and a half cups. Add one and one-half cups of hot broth to one cup of uncooked rice. Stir until it comes to a boil, then simmer or steam, covered, until the rice is tender.

Next, comes the sauce: The Sauce: Melt one-fourth cup of chicken fat or butter or margarine in a saucepan and blend in one-fourth cup flour. When smooth add two cups milk, stirring and cooking until the sauce is smooth and has thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

To assemble: In a greased casserole place a layer of the rice which was cooked in the chicken broth. Next a layer of chunked chicken and follow with a layer of the cream sauce. Repeat this performance until everything is gone, then disposed of but end with a layer of rice. Pour over all, one cup more of chicken broth. Sprinkle the top of the casserole with a layer of dry bread crumbs and dot the top with little bits of chicken fat. Place in a moderate oven, 350 degrees and allow to bake until bubbly, brownish on the top and deliciously hot. This takes about 40 to 60 minutes depending on the type of casserole you are using.

For purity and because you are tempted into being cautious use a few mushrooms and almonds layered in with the chicken and rice. A very few of these will impart a wonderful flavor.

This is truly a dish with a thousand uses—and fits into round-the-year-eating.

primaries. Stassen had predicted he would get a dozen Ohio delegates, including one from the state at-large.

He selected industrialized areas principally for his battle grounds, apparently expecting to capitalize on sentiment against the Taft-Hartley law.

The pay-off was a Stassen sweep of delegates in the Toledo, Akron, Youngstown and Dayton areas. He split with Taft in one Cleveland district but lost the others there, and in the Canton, Steubenville, Springfield and Portsmouth sections.

Carrington T. Marshall, Columbus attorney and former chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, was Stassen's only delegate-at-large candidate. With nine to be elected on a state-wide basis, Marshall ran a distant tenth. Taft people noted that Stassen had said he would not regard his Ohio race as a victory unless Marshall's vote total equaled the average received by Taft delegates-at-large.

Taft, himself, in pre-primary forecasts refused to concede Stassen a single delegate but his campaign manager, Rep. Clarence J. Brown, said "par for the course is four to nine."

Sen. John W. Bricker led the at-large field with 410,513 votes with 6180 of 9385 polling places reported. Ed D. Schorr of Cincinnati, former state GOP chairman, was lowest of the nine winners with 330,524. Marshall ran out with 318,371.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive

Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduces the red-blood strength—hence, your blood isn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.

Every day, every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have positively proven that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater energy and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—faria health fit out before your eyes. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Congress Has Full Program for Summer

BY JAMES MARLOW

Washington, May 3—(AP)—Congress has its hands full to finish up before the important summer coming up. The House will meet in Philadelphia June 21 to nominate a candidate for president. The Democrats there in July.

The Democrats and Republicans in Congress want to finish before June 21 so that:

1. They can take part in the conventions.
2. Use the time between the conventions and the elections in November to campaign for their own re-election.
3. One-third of the 96 Senate seats and all 435 House seats will be at stake in the elections.
4. And what Congress does this year will be part of the campaign.

The two biggest things Congress has done since starting its 1948 work in January are the income tax cut and the Marshall Plan aid for Europe.

But there's plenty of big stuff to be done before the conventions start. And probably not all will get done because some will mean long days.

Here are some of the major items still unfinished:

1. Men for the armed forces—Congress will have to decide whether to pass a draft law, or compel youths to take military training or both.
2. Housing—The Senate has passed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long-range housing bill. It's now up to the House to okay it and thus make it a law, or kill it, or let it die.
3. Margarine—The House voted to wipe out all federal taxes on margarine. Nothing will be changed, though, unless the Senate votes as the House did.
4. The Reciprocity Trade Agreements act—it dies June 12 unless Congress renews it. This act has been on the books 14 years.
5. It's a cornerstone of this country's foreign policy. The act means simply this: To get better trade, the government is allowed to cut tariffs on certain kinds of imports from a foreign country if that country agrees to cut its own tariffs on certain imports.
6. Displaced persons—should this country let perhaps 200,000 or more displaced persons in Europe come into this country?

The Senate may act on this by mid-May. Maybe. And maybe the House will act. It's up in the air.

6. Civil rights—the idea of passing an anti-lynching law and a law to wipe out poll taxes has been kicking around Congress for months.
7. Tidelands—The House last week passed a bill to give the states ownership of the land, rich in oil, off their coasts. The government says the government should control lands.
8. Atomic Energy Commission—the terms of office of the five members of the Atomic Energy Commission, including chairman David E. Lilienthal, end August 1.

President Truman has asked the Senate to approve the re-appointing of all of them, with Lilienthal appointed for five years.

There'll be a fight on this. The Republicans talk of a two-year limit. If there's a Republican president next year, they say, he should be free to name his own commissioners.

Young Mother, Three Children Perish in Fire

Wilson, May 6—(UP)—A youthful mother and three of her five children burned to death here last night when fire swept their small home following an explosion.

Mrs. A. H. Collins, about 25, died in a Memphis, Tenn. hospital. Her children, Wayne, three; Jewelline, 18-months; and a two-week-old boy, died in the flames. Two other children were playing in the yard at the time of the blaze and escaped injury.

The husband, and father was working in a near-by field and arrived home as neighbors were preparing to take Mrs. Collins to the hospital.

T. Lynch, manager of the Wilson Plantation where the Collins are tenants, said the woman apparently poured tractor fuel into the cook stove to start a fire while preparing the evening meal. He said neighbors heard an explosion and looked up in time to see her dash from the house in flames.

Bevin Defends Western Europe Alliance as Step That Will Not Lead to War

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

This column yesterday tried to analyze President Truman's view that the current year "may well determine the world's future," and pointed out that the number one issue of the period is whether the cold war will develop into a shooting war or whether it can be kept within bounds.

Britain's outspoken Foreign Secretary, Ernest Bevin, now enters the discussion with the statement that "the chaotic separation of the Western (European) Powers, if allowed to continue, would leave them open as a prey." A prey to what? Well, very obviously to Communist aggression, which almost inevitably would turn the cold war into a hot one.

Bevin was addressing the House of Commons and was dealing with the proposed expansion of the new five-power alliance among Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg into an economic and military union of all western Europe. He declared that such a union wouldn't lead to war and that it would lead to "chaotic separation" might lead to it.

The greatest danger of war isn't that any power would deliberately precipitate it. Rather it lies in the chance that some nation, or group, might inadvertently do something, through rashness or stupidity, which would set the world aflame again.

I believe that represents the consensus of close observers. Indeed none other than General Eisenhower subscribed to this view in a press conference. He was asked whether he thought the United States was closer to war with Russia than a year ago, and replied that "no great country, including Russia, would deliberately provoke war at this time. He said war possibly could be started by 'some stupid act or a deadlock of some kind', in which neither side could retreat."

Unfortunately Europe is so tense that it might react much more quickly to "some stupid act" than it would under normal conditions. There have been plenty of flashes of fire between the Russians and the western allies in Germany and Poland recently, but caution on both sides has prevented difficult situations from getting out of hand.

One big threat of trouble lies in the fact that the present relative calm in Europe is merely a lull in the Communist revolution. With the absorption of Czechoslovakia, Russia got as far as she could go in her offensive without a display of force which would be asking for war. Moscow tacitly recognized this by holding Italy's big Communist party in its stead during the recent national elections. It was clear that use of force by the Reds would endanger world peace.

Where will the next blow come? Of course Italy and France are the immediate prizes at which the Communists are aiming, but those countries are tough objectives.

'Reactionary' Fired at GOP by Member
Washington, May 5—(AP)—Senator Morse of Oregon today fired the word "reactionary" at a group of his Republican colleagues who are trying to avoid just such a tag on the party's national convention actions.

Morse said it actually was he who suggested the idea of having the Senate's self-styled progressive Republicans band together.

But, Morse told a reporter, not only he but four other senators he had proposed as "liberal enough" for membership were left out of the group's initial meeting Monday at the home of Senator Baldwin (Conn.).

Morse said he had branched the subject to Baldwin who "immediately" adopted the idea. Baldwin first invited him to the Monday meeting, the Oregon senator replied but later came to him "much embarrassed."

Others in the group had decided, Morse quoted Baldwin as telling him, that the organization meeting should be attended only by those who had been invited in the Senate with party regularity.

This, Morse noted, left him out along with his nominees—Senators Aiken (Vt.), Cooper (Ky.), Langer (ND) and Tobey (N.H.)—all of whom have kicked over party traces occasionally.

"It appears," Morse continued, "that the next progressive organization, primarily interested in gaining control of the Republican party and to adopt the reactionary principles of party regularity as a test of Republicanism," he added.

Local Clubs to Appear on Radio Shows

The county home demonstration councils in southwest Arkansas are planning varied and interesting programs to highlight club activities and accomplishments during National Home Demonstration Week, May 2 to 8.

Radio programs will be conducted by home demonstration club women in Hempstead, Miller, Columbia, Union, Ouachita and Clark counties.

Style revues have been planned by 4-H clubs in Hempstead and Pike counties.

Practically all home demonstration clubs are planning community get-togethers, sermons and picnics during the week. The home demonstration club women in Union county are having a luncheon at the Garrett Hotel with Dr. Frank J. Soday, research director of Lion Oil Company, to speak on "New Horizons."

One club in Pike county is planning a flower show and a tour will be conducted in Glenwood on yard improvement.

Home demonstration clubs will have exhibits in store windows on various phases of educational work emphasized by the clubs this year.

In Hempstead County, the home demonstration club women will utilize a chair at a special meeting. They will also sponsor a mail box painting program in each community where there is a club. The clubwomen have made 150 pairs of pajamas for the Arkansas Children's Home and Hospital. There will be a display of these pajamas in Hope during the week of May 2 to 8.

Several counties will have their spring county council meeting during that week in order to summarize their county programs. One home demonstration club will sponsor a mother-daughter 4-H club will display the articles made by the club girls. These articles will be on exhibit in Glenwood.

A story writing contest on "Why I Believe in a Home Demonstration Club," will be sponsored by the Little River County Council. Winning stories will be published in the Yell county paper. Each home demonstration club will hold a special meeting of some nature. Some will be community recreation meetings, other will hold programs on Home Demonstration activities.

Support Mustered for Restoration of M&A Railway

Harrison, May 6—(AP)—Support of a plan for restoration of the long idle Missouri and Arkansas railway is being mustered in towns along the portion of the line in Arkansas.

The Harrison Chamber of Commerce is conducting a campaign to obtain pledges for the purchase of $100,000 in stock of a corporation which would buy the line from its present owners and operate it between Neosho, Mo., and Kensett, Ark.

Arkansas communities on the railway are trying to get pledges for $150,000 in stock.

The restoration plan was drawn up by Kelly F. Gibson of Tulsa, Okla., and Eureka Springs, Ark. Under the plan, his backers, forming a corporation, would seek to borrow $250,000 from the reconstruction finance corporation to purchase the line. They would lease equipment from the Kansas City Southern Railway and operate the M. & A. between Neosho and Kensett.

The Gibson plan has been called the "last chance" for restoration of the M. & A. by former State Senator Roy Milum of Harrison, a leader in restoration efforts.

The M. & A., owned by Salzberg and Co. of New York, has been idle since a walkout of employees in September, 1946. An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner has recommended that the line be abandoned and held for salvage.

THIRSTY OR NOT

Have you ever seen anyone leave part of a GRAPETTE?

Here and There in Arkansas

Fayetteville, May 5—(UP)—A Pulitzer Prize winning Southern newspaper editor will be guest speaker at the annual University of Arkansas Press Club banquet here May 18. Club President Bill Seacrest of Fort Smith announced today.

Holding Carter, editor and publisher of the Greenville (Miss.) Delta Democrat Times, won the Pulitzer award for editorial writing in 1946 for his anti-Billie campaign.

The annual press banquet will bring together many outstanding Arkansas journalists.

Annual highlight of the event is the crowning of a Miss Arkansas Traveler from among the senior co-eds active in journalism. Last year's winner was Miss Carol Schoen of Coffeyville, Kan.

Little Rock, May 5—(UP)—Conductor Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia symphony orchestra will present a concert at Little Rock's Robinson Auditorium tomorrow evening. Mrs. Frank Vaughan announced today.

The 110 piece orchestra is on a national tour and will stop briefly Thursday afternoon at Memphis before coming on to Little Rock. Alexander Hillsberg is assistant conductor and concert master.

Certain time is 8:30 p. m.

Little Rock, May 5—(AP)—Farm work made good progress last week and the crop outlook is greatly improved, especially in the delta areas.

Tornado Hits Little Town in Oklahoma

Blocker, Okla., May 6—(AP)—A tornado lashed this tiny southeast Oklahoma community last night, ripping up four houses and a church and damaging every one of the other 16 homes here.

No deaths were reported. Blocker is 15 miles northwest of McAlester, Okla.

Other towns in a north-south line from Kansas to Texas were raked and harried by squalls.

In Okemah, 45 miles northwest of Blocker, half a dozen shop and warehouse roofs were blown off two partly completed homes destroyed and the town littered with tree branches and broken window glass.

Barlesville, Paoli, Asher, Eufaula, Castle, Pauls Valley, Sapulpa, Drumright and Ardmore all reported the storm mostly with rain and hail driven before high winds.

Mayor D. P. Dick estimated damage in Okemah was about $75,000, and Grover Oliver Duff in Blocker said the tornado there did "several thousand dollars" damage.

Rock headquarters "at least until late in the campaign."

Headquarters of Sidney S. McMahon of Hot Springs also a gubernatorial candidate, were opened in the Capitol Hotel here yesterday.

Courage on the Telephone

Rogers, Ark.—(AP)—When a tornado approached this community April 19, 1947, Mrs. Marguerite Miller, telephone operator, courageously remained at her post. For her devotion to duty, Mrs. Miller recently was named "First Lady of the Year" in Rogers by the local chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler Copyright, 1947 By King Features Syndicate.

In 1928 there came to the corn-breeding farm of Henry Wallace at Ames, Ia., a Soviet Russian scientist named Borodine to learn what he could about the improvement of the breed of corn. He and Henry had a long talk. Henry had waived his chance to broaden his horizon in 1917 and 1918 by claiming deferment in the draft. He was fascinated by the strange talk and places far beyond the Iowa line. When Borodine was leaving, the country boy drove him to the railroad station and Borodine told him about the great Professor Nicholas Roerich, an artist of renown and the outstanding cultural influence of the age. There will be some who will suspect that Mr. Borodine was sent all the way from Moscow to look at the simple haysacker with gooky tendencies, but actually seems that nature and fate did the monkey business. Not even Stalin could have known then that the Henry Wallace whom the neighborly sometimes regarded with amusement would one day become secretary of agriculture and, on later date, the candidate of the Communists for president of the U.S.A.

In those days, Henry came to New York no oftener than once in 18 months. The next time he did go down to the city late in 1928, he called at Roerich's publicity plant.

With a suppressed cry of "Hello sucker!" they went to work on that thick and sent him away loaded with pamphlets telling what a genius Roerich was. Henry was very well up on corn and you couldn't fool him on fertilizer. But when the press agent sounded off about the deeper meanings of Roerich's paintings he could just about manage the opinion that they certainly were real purdy pitchers, at that.

They didn't let him meet Roerich then. They didn't even let him see his master. Still, Henry was as put in it a few years ago, completely taken in and for a long time thereafter he read and believed every issue of Roerich's magazine. As he looked back over his foolishness, Henry realized that Roerich had played him for a chump and hadn't admitted him to his presence more than a few times in all their association. He recalled that Roerich's "exclusive-ness" made him seem desirable to know. Much too late to recall his writings and actions, he suspected that this was all showmanship by the great, mystical guru. He speculated the opinion that one way to make a man great was to keep him out of sight and get people to say wonderful things about him.

The next time Henry got to New York was in 1929. He was then on his way to a conference of European agricultural economists and the sap recalled that he was thrilled beyond measure when he was told that it might be possible to arrange an interview of a few minutes with the old professor.

(One of the gooky guru letters which Wallace had refused to discuss said: "I hope to call at the (Roerich) museum on Aug. 14, 15 or 16. At any rate, I am sailing from New York on Aug. 17 for England with some Cornell professors to attend an economics conference in England, after which I go to Hungary to study maize growing in the European corn belt. This was signed "H. A. Wallace.")

Wallace considered himself to have been honored when the press agent arranged a ten-minute visit with Roerich. He couldn't even remember what the guru said but he was much impressed, mainly by the Oriental cast of Roerich's features and by his whiskers. Later he learned that Roerich had a habit of running his fingers through the hair to part them into two main sprays or sheaves. The old boy's head was nude and, like a schoolboy who has been reading a story about the sacred ruby stolen from the forehead of the idol in the lamazur, Henry came away starting at shadows.

Henry thought it was during this first meeting that the press agent sprang a plan to arrange a compact among all nations to be called, modestly, the Roerich pact, to protect all national treasures in time of war. Roerich was willing to let himself be identified in publicity in all the rich centers where party clients might want to buy his paintings as the founder and sponsor of this great cultural business. He had also designed a symbol of three dots or balls within a circle, to fly on a banner over all registered cultural objects. At this point I refer to one of the gooky guru letters which said, "both in words and in painting, Roerich is an adept in the use of symbols which have a power unknown to science." Further on this point, I discovered that in 1930, Raoul E. Desvern-

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh B. Pullerton, Jr.

New York, May 6 — (AP) — "Tournament of Champions, Inc." the organization promoting the third Rocky Graziano-Tony Zale fight, was formed over a gin rummy game attended by seven prosperous business men. There's something slightly mysterious about it, because no one can tell you who offered them the proposition in the first place — or who won at gin rummy that night.

Grimm Humor
When Charley Grimm, the Cubs manager, recently encountered Milt Woodard, former Chicago sports writer who became general manager of the Grand Rapids, Mich., Jets of the Central League, Grimm bowed several times and followed up with a warm handshake. Asked about this unusual greeting, Grimm explained: "I have a new policy — always be good to general managers, because you never know when they might become your boss."

Sports Before Your Eyes
Word from down East is that Boston University is rounding up football players far outside its regular territory and will make a real bid for a big time rating with a year or two. The Chicago White Sox have tabbed catcher Aaron Robinson "Yogi Berra's little Bobo". According to the Western Golf Association, average annual expenses of a golfer at a private club are $560. That's a lot to pay for the privilege of losing your temper once a week.

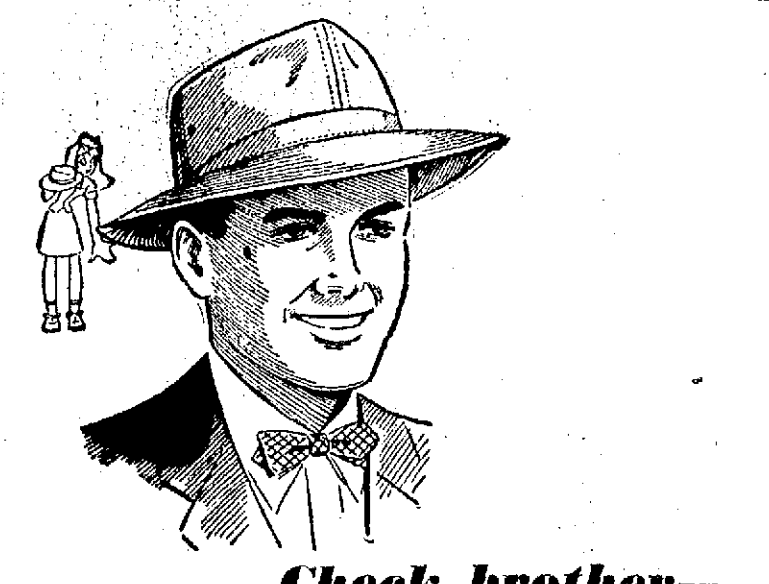

Smack!
During the recent Florida-Tampa U. baseball game, Florida first baseman Bobby Forbes paused between innings to talk with an attractive cheer leader, Lee Robinson. As Bobby turned toward his plate, Lee remarked: "G'bye. Hit a home run." Forbes stepped up and smacked one over Pesky. Ted Williams, and Spence, interspersed with a wild throw by losing pitcher Dizzy Trout. It was Boston's fourth straight victory and a heartening one because Kinder by his showing indicated he was ready for starting duty.

Softball League Organized, Play to Start Soon

Local players and team sponsors met with the softball association at Hope City Hall last night and made plans for play this season. About 40 persons attended.

A softball league was set up and will be governed by the Softball Commission and Coaches. Nolan Tollett and Lawrence Martin. The league is open to all Hempstead county. It is planned to have 6 or 8 teams in the loop. From the league an all-star team will be selected to operate the same as last season's merchants' team. The all-star group will not be allowed to operate as a team in league play. They will only play out of town competition. Fred Robinson will manage the All-Star team.

Wednesday night, May 12, is the deadline for entry of players and team. Any person or firm may sponsor a team. A sponsor may select his own players or secure them from the league. Any player or team in Hempstead county may enter but must do so before the deadline. Just fill out a coupon which is published on this page and mail to the Chamber of Commerce.

Ottawa — (AP) — Nearly four out of 10 Canadians are directly or indirectly dependent upon export trade for their existence.

Atlanta Sweeps Twin Bill From Noogans

By The Associated Press

Atlanta finally played a game without making an error and beat the night was over had swept a twin bill from Chattanooga, 10-4 and 11-7 to bury the Lookouts deep in the Southern Association cellar.

Nashville, leading the league, rallied in the late innings to edge Birmingham, 5-2, while second-place Mobile kept the pace by beating Little Rock, 3-1, in a game halted by rain after five innings.

New Orleans blew a four-run lead but then came back with four runs in the eighth to break a deadlock and down Memphis, 9-5.

Mobile got all its runs in the top of the first and held on until the rain came with Armond Cardoni giving up only two hits. Both blows were triples and came in the fifth inning to account for Little Rock's lone run. The Bears capitalized on Bobby German's wildness for their first inning outburst. He walked two batters and hit one.

Today's schedule: Chattanooga at Atlanta, Mobile at Little Rock, Nashville at Birmingham, New Orleans at Memphis.

They walked along in silence. They saw a taxi coming towards them, and Miss Helen hailed it.

"Liverpool Street Station, please."

"Hop in,luv."

Miss Helen blushed.

"What a nice friendly driver," murmured Miss Alice.

Miss Helen ignored her. She stared out of the window. Not for worlds would she let her sister know that she was wondering if perhaps after all she agreed with her. Was she perhaps just a little too strict with Patience? Alice, of course, would be a perfect fool over her. She'd let her do every single thing she wanted. It was Charlotte's reference to her mother that was worrying her. Estelle had been kept under strict lock and key. And Patience was so terribly like her. Much more so indeed than Charlotte. Estelle had been quiet and docile. No one at home had ever dreamed of those far-off days that she was meeting that dreadful man night after night, crawling down the rain-water pipe to get to him after all the rest of the family had gone to bed.

Supposing she'd been given more freedom? Allowed to meet whom she pleased? Allowed to bring her young men to the house? Why, then, she might not have thought him half so wonderful!

They reached Liverpool Street and found that they'd have to hurry in order to catch their train. They'd been at Charlotte's far longer than they'd realized.

"Have your everything?" asked Miss Helen frostily.

Miss Alice looked around her. Her suitcase. Her umbrella. Her library book. The paper parcel of plants she was bringing for the garden. Yes, she had everything.

"I think so, Helen."

"Better be sure. You know how forgetful you are."

Miss Alice gave one final look in the taxi. Miss Helen paid the man and bade him a curt good evening.

"Cheerio," he called after her. Miss Alice followed her sister through the press of people, thinking how good it would be to go home again.

Just as she was about to enter the taxi, she saw a young man in a light-colored suit pushing and bustling. She felt the string of her brown paper parcel loosening in her hand. She tried to retrieve it.

"I say, let me help!"

The plants were strewn all around her. But instantly a tall, pleasant-looking young man was coming to her rescue.

"Alice, we really can't wait."

"But, Helen, I went to such trouble to get them."

"I think that's the lot," said the young man. "Here, let me do them up for you."

"Oh, thank you. I'm in such a hurry."

"Alice!" called Miss Helen imperiously.

"I'm just coming. Oh, really you're most kind."

Miss Alice took the parcel, and went to pick up her suitcase again. But the young man was before her.

"Let me carry it for you. We'll get along more quickly. Which train are you catching?"

"The 6:30 to Oakley."

Swift interest sprang to his eyes, but Miss Alice was too flustered to notice it.

"So am I," he said. "At least I'm going farther on. We'll have to be speedy, you know."

Miss Helen, hurrying on ahead, paused a moment to shift her suitcase from one hand to another.

"I say, let me take that as well. It'll sort of balance things."

Miss Helen made a grab at it.

"Oh, no, I couldn't let you."

"Nonsense." He grinned at her impudently. "You'd better, you know, if you want to catch that train. Look, I'll have on and save you a couple of seats."

They hurried after him, puffing and blowing. The ticket collector snatched them through the barrier.

"Train's just going."

The young man was waving to them frantically. He had seats, it would seem, in the very last compartment. He came running towards them and grabbed Miss Alice by one arm, and Miss Helen by the other. And with one last effort they made it.

The guard slammed the door of their carriage. Paul glanced up at the two suitcases he'd flung onto the rack. He could read the labels on them even though they were upside down. Miss Helen Melville. Miss Alice Melville. Holy smoke! So these really were the two old dragons!

Miss Alice sat back in her corner and laid a hand over her heart.

"You all right?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh yes, thank you. It's just—I'm not very used to hurrying."

"Let me open the window a little more."

Miss Helen looked at the young man who'd been so helpful and decided he was really very pleasant. He was extremely nice-looking too. And he'd got such charming manners. He was clearly the sort of young man any young girl might fall in love with.

She wondered who he was and where he came from. She wondered if just possibly it might be a good idea to sound him. Of course she'd not been introduced to him. So far she really knew nothing about him. But maybe he knew someone she knew. Maybe it might be all right, if his answers to her questionings were satisfactory, to ask him over one afternoon just for tea.

At any rate it would be interesting to see how Patience liked him.

President

Saying a president can do only what he is authorized to do, he said:

"People talk about the powers of the president. Let me tell you something. A president may have a great many powers given to him under the constitution.

"What those powers amount to is to bring people in and persuade them to do what they ought to do without persuasion."

That is the way the country functions, he said, and he thoughtfully approves, but it makes the immediate solution of problems difficult.

The president recalled a family with a baby and a dog that have been living in a Washington parking lot and had been forced to move. Yet they had no place to go, he said.

Children and dogs are as necessary to the welfare of this country, he said emphatically, "as wall street and the railroads."

Wolcott opened a deep grave for the Senate bill when he made it clear he spoke for other House GOP leaders in telling a reporter:

"The Senate was informed last week that the House is not interested in a short term continuance. The House Banking Committee has not scheduled any hearings on the Senate's 50-day extension bill and it does not anticipate any."

Wolcott's plain brush-off brought into the open the long-smouldering housing dispute between a Senate group led by Taft and a House group headed by Wolcott. Taft is chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

The main issue in the scrap is the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long range housing bill designed to spur the construction of 15,000,000 new homes by 1958. The Senate passed the bill two weeks ago. Wolcott's committee is holding hearings on it.

Wolcott left no doubt that he regards the Senate insurance extension, backed by Taft, as a move to force his committee to send the T-E-W bill to the House floor, in fact with its controversial section providing for 500,000 government-owned and operated public housing units.

Wolcott used crackling language to emphasize that he and his colleagues won't be pushed. He said:

"The House is not going to be pressured into premature action on such an important matter by any childish tactics which are considered beneath the dignity and responsibility of Congress."

The T-E-W bill has a provision extending the home loan insurance program through next March. The House has passed a separate bill providing for the same extension.

But Taft and other Senate backers of public housing don't want to act on the House measure. They want the House to act on the omnibus T-E-W bill.

So yesterday, after another round of hot debate, the Senate passed its stopgap 60-day extension to revive the government's loan insurance power which expired last Friday night.

Before the bill passed and went to the House, the Senate snatched down, 43 to 28, an amendment by Senator Cain (R-Wash) to strip the insurance program from the T-E-W bill and extend it through next March, as the House did.

Senator Alben W. Barkley (Ky), the Democratic leader, said Cain's proposal was designed to "give the House a good alibi" to shelve public housing and the rest of the long range bill.

"Alben, you're so right," chimed in Senator Tobey (R-NH), chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

Tobey said "the real estate lobbyists" stood to benefit by Cain's amendment and that they figured it would get rid of public housing.

Cain tried unsuccessfully to knock public housing out of the bill before it went to the House.

Taft said the real estate "lobby" want the loan insurance program in a separate bill because "it is exceedingly profitable for private builders." He said the "lobbies" have "built up tremendous propaganda" against the whole T-E-W bill "simply because they are afraid that public housing might go through."

Citation Heads List of Starters in Preakness

Baltimore, May 6 —(UP)Seven probable starters were listed today as challengers of Citation, Calumet's calculation comet, in the Preakness, May 15.

The entries were discussed gingerly, of course, for there seemed to be little faith in any horse beating the bay colt which pranced to such a one-sided victory in the Kentucky Derby Saturday.

However, the Maryland Jockey club did promise at least taken opposition in the form of C. V. Whitney's Mount Marcy and Vulcan's Force, William Helis' Salmagundi, W. L. Brann's Escadr, Ben Whitaker's My Request and Bomar Stables' Fiat.

President

paign year.

Saying a president can do only what he is authorized to do, he said:

"People talk about the powers of the president. Let me tell you something. A president may have a great many powers given to him under the constitution.

"What those powers amount to is to bring people in and persuade them to do what they ought to do without persuasion."

That is the way the country functions, he said, and he thoughtfully approves, but it makes the immediate solution of problems difficult.

The president recalled a family with a baby and a dog that have been living in a Washington parking lot and had been forced to move. Yet they had no place to go, he said.

Children and dogs are as necessary to the welfare of this country, he said emphatically, "as wall street and the railroads."

Wolcott opened a deep grave for the Senate bill when he made it clear he spoke for other House GOP leaders in telling a reporter:

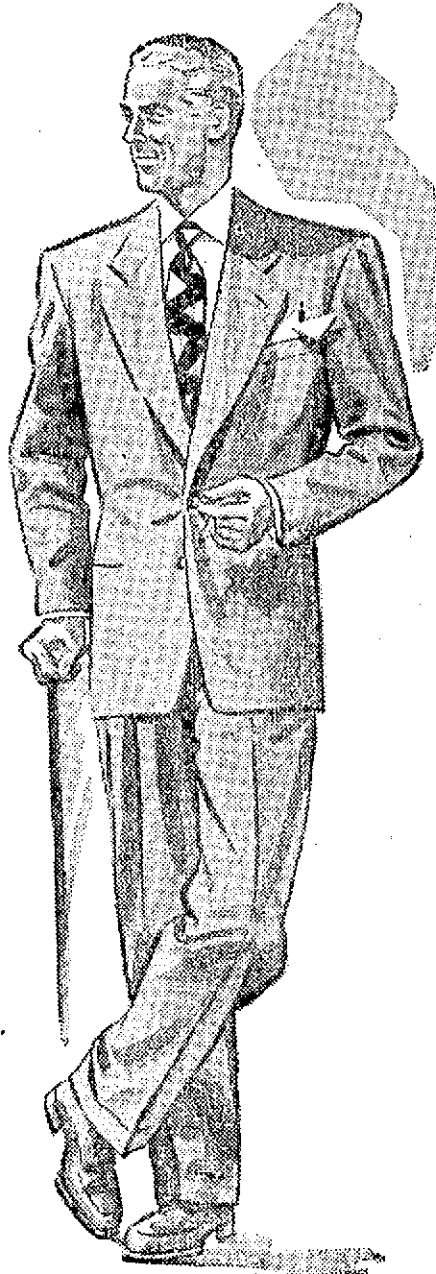

"The Senate was informed last week that the House is not interested in a short term continuance. The House Banking Committee has not scheduled any hearings on the Senate's 50-day extension bill and it does not anticipate any."

Wolcott's plain brush-off brought into the open the long-smouldering housing dispute between a Senate group led by Taft and a House group headed by Wolcott. Taft is chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

The main issue in the scrap is the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long range housing bill designed to spur the construction of 15,000,000 new homes by 1958. The Senate passed the bill two weeks ago. Wolcott's committee is holding hearings on it.

Wolcott left no doubt that he regards the Senate insurance extension, backed by Taft, as a move to force his committee to send the T-E-W bill to the House floor, in fact with its controversial section providing for 500,000 government-owned and operated public housing units.
